NOT THE BIG PICTURE

National and local artists to be 'hung' at Greenhill Galleries

This year, a number of known and emerging artists have again put brushes to canvas to support the AIDS Council of SA (ACSA) and the Red Ribbon Bobby Goldsmith Fund (RRBGF). With an array of recognised and emerging artists offering a breathtaking and diverse collection of artworks, the event is to be held on Friday 29th June, 6.00pm at Greenhill Galleries in North Adelaide.

For the past two years, the "Not the Big Picture" Silent Art Auction, with the support of Greenhill Gallery's Russell Starke, has raised over $23,000 for the RRBGF.

Ninety national and local artists have this year been invited to participate in "Not the Big Picture." Artists who have donated works this year include Coralie Armstrong, Andrew Baines, Mike Barr, Jacinta Dixon, Colin Hannaford, Drew Harrison, Noris Ioannou, Mary Knott and David Thorpe, to name but a few.

The AIDS Council of SA is a community-based organisation funded by the South Australian Government to provide HIV/AIDS prevention and education services. The Mission of ACSA is to improve the health and well being of people at risk of, affected by, and/or living with HIV/AIDS, whilst striving for a future free of HIV.

The Red Ribbon Bobby Goldsmith Fund raises funds to assist people living with HIV/AIDS in South Australia. The funds are dispersed to improve their quality of life, provide financial assistance and assist in the development of support networks.

Supported by quality Amadio Wines, the night will be a highlight of ACSA's fundraising calendar, where guests can purchase an eye-catching, artwork knowing the funds raised support the RRBGF to assist those who are living with and are affected by HIV/AIDS.
